N. B. Besides the works noticed in the foregoing Catalogue, there are upwards of twenty volumes making parts of sundry sets of miscellaneous publications, the residue of which, having probably been lent by the noble spirited testator, could not be found on receiving the bequest from the administrator.

The reader will excuse the want of the cedilla and of appropriate accents in the French articles detailed in this Catalogue, as these do not constitute a part of the font of types used.

[The Beth Gimel Lamed Society, a literary institution confined to the students of Alleghany College, have commenced forming a library, which, in due time, may be worthy of special notice.]

REMARKS.

IN compiling this Catalogue of the Books, Maps, Charts, and Plates belonging to the Library of Alleghany College, those bequeathed by the late Hon. James Winthrop, LL.D. form the first section; those bequeathed by the late Rev. William Bentley, D. D. the second; those presented by Isaiah Thomas, Esq. LL.D. the third; and those presented, at different times, from the 20 of June 1815, when the College was founded, to the 4 of July, 1823, by many kind benefactors, whose names are subjoined, and whose respective donations are estimated at various sums, from fifty cents to more than one hundred dollars, form the fourth and last division.

For a full list of all benefactors to Alleghany College the reader is referred to the History of the origin, rise, and progress of this institution, which in due time may be expected from the press.

The plan adopted in preparing this Catalogue is substantially the same, which the compiler pursued in making the Catalogue of the Library of the Massachusetts Historical Society in 1811 and that of the New York Historical Society in 1813, with this principal exception, that, in forming the two latter, he gave an account of all the miscellaneous tracts, orations, sermons, right hands of fellowship and charges at the ordination of ministers, and of other printed documents, however small. If this minuteness had been extended to the present Catalogue, it would have added many pages to its size, as there are several thousands of similar publications in the Library of Alleghany College, which, from principles of economy, have not been particularly noticed.

Where a scientific arrangement of a Catalogue is not attempted, the writer thinks that the best method is to place every work under the name of the author. This has been the method in preparing this Catalogue whenever the author's name appeared with the work, and, occasionally, anonymous publications have been suffixed to the name, when known, inclosed in [ ]. Other works appear under some leading word in the title page.

The object in publishing this Catalogue is, not only, to manifest the respectful gratitude of the Trustees, the Faculty of Arts, the Students, and the Friends of this western Seminary, for the, in the United States, unprecedented patronage, which one department in this new institution has had; but that its friends, at home and abroad, seeing what has already been bestowed, may perceive what is wanted to increase its literary and scientific treasures, and with the well founded hope and expectation that not a few, who delight in using their endeavours to diffuse the light of knowledge in a new, flourishing, and interesting section of the American republic, will, from time to time, gratify their inclination and enhance the obligations, which are sincerely felt, by adding, as opportunity may offer, to the Library of Alleghany College, publications on any art or science and in any language whatever.

In the edifice, whose majestic walls have already reached their intended height, there will be one chamber 60 by 44 feet with a tier of alcoves, from one extremity to the other, for the location of the books of this invaluable library, the arches of which will be adorned with the names of the principal benefactors. In the Catalogue presented to the public, the intelligent will perceive that there is an extensive range of the best editions of the Greek and Roman classics and of the ancient Fathers of the christian church—that there are books in thirty different languages ancient and modern with lexicons and grammars and elementary books for studying the most of them—and that in history ancient and modern, in bellettres, and other branches of literature and science there is a most excellent collection.

List of benefactors, from whom the books noticed in the last section of this Catalogue were procured.
